

#3

- c) a processor operable to receive the input signals and configure the interface in accordance with those selections.
10. A computer-readable medium including software code, such that when the software code is executed it results in:
- 5 a) a user interface to allow independent selection of parameters of a serial interface;
- b) reception of inputs indicating settings for the parameters; and
- c) configuration of the interface in accordance with the settings.

FOI 2007 01090260